Overview of the 2020 AP World History Exam

The 2020 AP World History Exam was designed to assess students' understanding of world history from approximately 1200 CE to the present. It evaluated knowledge across multiple historical themes such as interaction between humans and the environment, development and interaction of cultures, state-building, economic systems, and social structures. The exam required students to demonstrate historical thinking skills including analysis of primary and secondary sources, making historical connections, and constructing evidence-based arguments. The 2020 edition was particularly notable due to modifications in content scope and exam format in response to global health concerns.

Exam Format and Structure

The format of the 2020 AP World History Exam reflected changes implemented to accommodate remote testing and reduce content burden. Traditionally, the exam consists of multiple-choice questions, short-answer questions, a document-based question (DBQ), and a long essay question (LEQ). In 2020, the exam was shortened and focused exclusively on the period from 1200 CE to the present, omitting earlier historical periods covered in previous exams.

Multiple-Choice Section

The multiple-choice section tested students' ability to analyze historical texts, images, maps, and data. Questions required critical thinking and the application of historical knowledge to specific contexts. This section was designed to assess content mastery and interpretive skills.

Short-Answer Questions

The short-answer portion included prompts that required concise, focused responses based on provided sources or historical scenarios. These questions aimed to evaluate students' ability to synthesize information and demonstrate understanding of historical developments.

Document-Based Question (DBQ)

The DBQ involved analyzing a set of historical documents and constructing a coherent essay that integrated the documents with outside knowledge. This section assessed students' skills in sourcing, contextualization, and argumentation.

Long Essay Question (LEQ)

The LEQ required students to write a detailed essay on a chosen historical theme or development, demonstrating depth of understanding and effective argument construction.

Content Covered in the 2020 Exam

The 2020 AP World History Exam focused on the period from 1200 CE to the present, covering key global developments across six major chronological periods. This focus allowed students to explore themes such as global interactions, empires, revolutions, and modernization in depth.

Key Historical Periods

- 1200–1450: The Global Tapestry and early interactions
- 1450–1750: Age of Exploration and early modern empires
- 1750–1900: Industrialization and global imperialism

- 1900–Present: Global conflicts, decolonization, and globalization

Major Themes

The exam emphasized thematic understanding, requiring students to connect developments across regions and timeframes. Themes included:

- Human-environment interaction
- Cultural developments and interactions
- Governance and political structures
- Economic systems and trade networks
- Social interactions and organization

Scoring and Grading Criteria

Scoring for the 2020 AP World History Exam was based on a composite of multiple-choice and free-response sections. The College Board used a standardized rubric to evaluate essays, particularly the DBQ and LEQ, emphasizing thesis development, use of evidence, historical reasoning, and synthesis.

Multiple-Choice Scoring

Each correct multiple-choice answer contributed to the overall raw score, which was then converted into a scaled score. There was no penalty for incorrect answers, encouraging students to attempt every question.

Free-Response Scoring

The DBQ and LEQ essays were scored on criteria including:

- Thesis and argument development
- Use and analysis of historical evidence
- Historical context and synthesis
- Clarity and coherence of writing

Short-answer responses were similarly graded based on accuracy, completeness, and historical evidence.

Preparation Strategies and Study Tips

Effective preparation for the 2020 AP World History Exam involved a combination of content review, skill development, and practice under timed conditions. Students were advised to focus on key themes, timelines, and historical thinking skills.

Content Review

Students should prioritize understanding major events and trends from 1200 CE to the present, including significant empires, revolutions, and global interactions. Creating timelines and thematic charts can aid in retention and synthesis.

Practice with Primary Sources

Analyzing primary and secondary sources is critical for success on the DBQ and short-answer questions. Practicing with sample documents helped students develop skills in sourcing, contextualization, and corroboration.

Writing Skills

Developing clear, well-organized essays with strong thesis statements and supporting evidence was essential. Practicing past DBQs and LEQs under timed conditions helped students improve their writing fluency and time management.

Utilizing Review Resources

Students benefited from using review books, online practice exams, flashcards, and study groups to reinforce knowledge and exam strategies.

Impact of COVID-19 on the 2020 Exam

The COVID-19 pandemic significantly affected the administration of the 2020 AP World History Exam. The College Board made adjustments to ensure student safety and accommodate remote learning environments.

Exam Format Changes

The exam was shortened to approximately 45 minutes and focused solely on content from 1200 CE onwards. The multiple-choice section was removed, and students only completed the free-response section, which included a modified DBQ and one long essay question.

Remote Administration

For the first time, the exam was taken online at home. This transition required students to have reliable internet access and manage exam conditions independently. The College Board provided guidelines to maintain academic integrity.

Content Reduction

The College Board limited the scope of the curriculum to ease the burden of remote instruction and learning disruptions. This meant earlier historical periods were not tested, allowing students and teachers to focus on recent historical developments.

Student and Educator Responses

While some challenges arose due to the new format and remote testing environment, many students adapted successfully. Educators emphasized flexibility and support to help students navigate the changes effectively.
