3. Engage in Dialogue

Consider the DDQ as a starting point for dialogue rather than a one-time questionnaire. Engage with the investment manager in discussions about their responses, probing deeper into areas of concern or interest. This interaction can provide valuable insights into their operations and philosophy.

4. Review Responses Carefully

Take the time to review the responses received thoroughly. Look for consistency in the information provided and cross-reference answers with other available data. Any discrepancies should be discussed with the manager for clarification.

5. Document the Process

Keep detailed records of the DDQ process, including the responses received, any follow-up questions, and the outcome of discussions. Documenting the process will provide a valuable reference for future evaluations and decisions.
