Academy Overview

Campus Locations

The American Academy of Dramatic Arts operates two campuses:

1. New York City Campus – Located in the heart of Manhattan, this campus immerses students in the vibrant cultural environment of Broadway and off-Broadway theaters. The New York campus is particularly known for its strong focus on classical acting techniques and traditional stagecraft.

2. Los Angeles Campus – Situated in Hollywood, this campus emphasizes training for film and television, providing students with the skills needed to succeed in the competitive entertainment industry of Southern California.

Both campuses offer a variety of programs that cater to the diverse interests and aspirations of aspiring actors.

Programs Offered

The American Academy of Dramatic Arts provides a range of educational programs designed to meet the needs of students at various stages of their careers. Key programs include:

- Two-Year Conservatory Program: This comprehensive program focuses on acting techniques, script analysis, voice and speech, movement, and improvisation. Students receive extensive training in both stage and screen acting.
- One-Year Certificate Program: A condensed version of the conservatory program, this option is designed for students seeking a shorter, intensive training experience.
- Summer Programs: The academy also offers summer workshops and classes, providing opportunities for individuals to enhance their skills in a short period.
- Audition Workshops: These specialized workshops help students prepare for auditions, focusing on monologue selection, cold readings, and on-camera techniques.

Curriculum and Training

Acting Techniques

The curriculum at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts is built around a variety of acting methodologies, including:

- Stanislavski Method: This approach emphasizes emotional authenticity and character development, allowing actors to connect deeply with their roles.
- Meisner Technique: Focused on improvisation and responsiveness, this technique encourages actors to react instinctively to their scene partners.
- Viewpoints: A physical training method that explores movement, gesture, and spatial awareness, helping actors develop a strong physical presence on stage.

Supporting Disciplines

In addition to acting, students at the academy receive training in various supporting disciplines, including:

- Voice and Speech: Classes focus on vocal techniques, diction, and projection to help actors communicate effectively on stage and in front of the camera.
- Movement: Movement classes encompass dance, physical theater, and stage combat, enabling actors to develop their bodies as expressive instruments.
- Script Analysis: Students learn to dissect scripts and understand character motivations, themes, and subtext, equipping them with the tools needed for thoughtful performance.
