1. Analyze the Prompt

Carefully read the prompt to understand what is being asked. Identify the key components that must be addressed in your response. Pay attention to any specific instructions, such as the need to include particular documents or perspectives.

2. Organize the Documents

Before writing, take time to analyze each document. Consider the following:

- Author's Perspective: What is the author's point of view, and how might it influence the document's content?
- Historical Context: What background information is necessary to understand the document's significance?
- Connections Between Documents: How do the documents relate to one another? Do they support or contradict each other?

3. Develop a Strong Thesis Statement

Your thesis should present a clear argument that addresses the prompt. It should be specific and take a definitive stance. A strong thesis serves as the backbone of your essay, guiding the direction of your analysis.

4. Construct a Clear Outline

An outline helps organize your thoughts and ensures that you address all aspects of the prompt. A typical structure might include:

- Introduction: Introduce the topic and present your thesis statement.
- Body Paragraphs: Each paragraph should focus on a specific aspect of the prompt, integrating evidence from the documents. Use the following structure for each paragraph:
 - Topic sentence
 - Evidence from the documents
 - Analysis of the evidence
- Conclusion: Summarize your main points and restate the significance of your argument.

5. Write the Essay

With your outline in hand, begin writing your essay. Be sure to:

- Use Evidence: Incorporate evidence from the documents to support your arguments. Quote directly from the documents where appropriate.
- Analyze, Don't Just Summarize: Focus on analyzing the significance of the documents rather than merely summarizing their contents.
- Maintain a Formal Tone: Use an academic tone throughout your essay, avoiding casual language or first-person pronouns.

6. Review and Revise

Once you have completed your essay, take time to review and revise. Check for:
