Understanding Clauses

To grasp the concept of independent and dependent clauses, it is vital to first understand what a clause is. A clause is a group of words that contains a subject and a verb. Clauses can be categorized into two main types: independent clauses and dependent clauses.

Independent Clauses

An independent clause is a complete thought that can stand alone as a sentence. It contains a subject and a predicate and does not require any additional information to make sense. Here are some characteristics of independent clauses:

- Complete Thought: It expresses a complete idea.
- Can Stand Alone: It can function as a standalone sentence.
- Examples:
 - "The sun sets in the west."
 - "She enjoys reading novels."

Dependent Clauses

A dependent clause, on the other hand, cannot stand alone as a complete sentence. It relies on an independent clause to provide a complete thought. Dependent clauses often begin with subordinating conjunctions or relative pronouns. Here are some characteristics of dependent clauses:

- Incomplete Thought: It does not express a complete idea on its own.
- Cannot Stand Alone: It must be connected to an independent clause.
- Examples:
 - "Although it was raining."

- "Because she loves to read."
