Overview of AR 670-1

Army Regulation 670-1 is the official document that prescribes the wear and appearance standards of Army uniforms, insignia, and personal grooming. This regulation ensures that all soldiers present a uniform and professional appearance that upholds the Army's values and traditions. AR 670-1 covers a wide range of topics, including authorized uniforms, rank insignia placement, headgear, footwear, jewelry, tattoos, and hairstyles. The 2023 update to this regulation has introduced some clarifications and modifications reflecting modern standards and inclusivity while maintaining discipline and neatness. Commanders and non-commissioned officers rely on AR 670-1 as the baseline for enforcing uniform compliance during inspections and boards.

Purpose and Scope

The primary purpose of AR 670-1 is to establish consistent standards for wear and appearance across all components of the Army. It applies to all active duty, reserve, and National Guard soldiers. The regulation outlines specific guidance for different uniforms such as the Army Combat Uniform (ACU), Army Service Uniform (ASU), and physical fitness uniforms. Additionally, it addresses the proper wear of badges, patches, and other decorations. The scope extends beyond just clothing to personal grooming, including haircuts, facial hair, and cosmetics, ensuring soldiers maintain a disciplined appearance that enhances unit cohesion and esprit de corps.

Recent Updates in 2023

The 2023 revisions of AR 670-1 introduced new allowances and restrictions, particularly regarding tattoos, hairstyles, and uniform wear in different environments. For example, the regulation now provides more detailed guidance on the size, location, and content of tattoos, balancing individual expression with professional appearance. Changes also include updates to the wear of the Army Combat Uniform in non-deployment settings and adjustments to authorized hairstyles to accommodate diverse hair types. These updates have influenced the nature of board questions soldiers encounter, emphasizing current standards and expectations.

Grooming Standards in AR 670-1

Grooming standards are a fundamental component of AR 670-1, ensuring soldiers maintain a neat and professional look. These standards include specific policies on haircuts, facial hair, cosmetics, and jewelry. The regulation prescribes guidelines that accommodate health, safety, and uniformity while respecting cultural and religious practices when properly documented.

Haircuts and Hairstyles

AR 670-1 mandates that hair must be clean, well-groomed, and present a professional appearance. Hair length and style must not interfere with the proper wear of headgear or protective equipment. The 2023 update allows for more inclusive hairstyles, such as neatly groomed braids, twists, and locks, provided they conform to the standards of neatness and uniformity. Extreme or eccentric hairstyles that detract from a professional military appearance remain prohibited.

Facial Hair Regulations

Facial hair policies under AR 670-1 require soldiers to be clean-shaven unless a waiver is granted for religious reasons or medical conditions. Mustaches are authorized if kept neatly trimmed and do not extend beyond the corners of the mouth. Beards are generally not authorized unless specifically approved. The regulation emphasizes that facial hair must not interfere with the proper seal of protective masks or equipment.

Jewelry and Cosmetics

The regulation limits jewelry to small, conservative items to maintain a professional appearance and safety. Soldiers may wear a wristwatch, a wedding ring, and a set of not more than two rings on each hand. Earrings are authorized only for female soldiers, limited to small studs or hoops. Cosmetics must be applied conservatively to complement the uniform rather than detract from it.

Uniform and Insignia Regulations

AR 670-1 provides comprehensive rules regarding the proper wear, appearance, and maintenance of Army uniforms and insignia. This section outlines the critical points soldiers must know to comply with uniform standards during inspections and boards.

Proper Wear of Uniforms

Soldiers are required to wear the appropriate uniform for the occasion or duty, ensuring it is clean, serviceable, and correctly fitted. Uniform components must be worn in accordance with the regulation's specifications, including the correct placement of patches, badges, and nameplates. The regulation highlights distinctions between the Army Service Uniform, Army Combat Uniform, and physical fitness uniforms in terms of authorized wear and accessories.

Insignia and Badges

Insignia, rank badges, and other uniform accouterments must be positioned precisely as prescribed by AR 670-1. This includes proper alignment, spacing, and attachment methods. The regulation also outlines the wear of combat and skill badges, awards, and decorations, ensuring that soldiers display their achievements in a standardized and respectful manner.

Tattoos and Body Art

Tattoos must not be extremist, indecent, sexist, or racist in nature. The 2023 AR 670-1 update clarifies the size and placement of tattoos, prohibiting those that are visible while wearing the Army Service Uniform on the head, neck, face, or hands, with limited exceptions. Commanders have discretion to evaluate tattoos based on content and impact on unit cohesion and professionalism.
