His concept emphasized the purity of movement and the elimination of extraneous gestures, aiming for a heightened level of presence and intensity.

Defining Physical Actions in Grotowski's Work

Physical actions, in Grotowski's framework, are not arbitrary movements but intentional and precise acts performed by the actor to express inner impulses. Each action is carefully crafted to harness both physical energy and emotional resonance, creating a powerful theatrical language. This approach requires actors to develop acute body awareness and control, enabling them to engage fully with their physical instrument.

Body Conditioning and Awareness

Central to Grotowski's training is the conditioning of the body to achieve maximum flexibility, strength, and responsiveness. Actors engage in exercises that enhance proprioception, balance, and kinesthetic sensitivity, enabling subtle and precise control over every movement.
