

barbershop harmony society winners

Barbershop Harmony Society winners have a special place in the world of a cappella singing. Celebrated for their unique harmonies and vocal techniques, these groups and individuals represent the pinnacle of achievement in the barbershop genre. Founded in 1938, the Barbershop Harmony Society (BHS) has fostered a vibrant community of singers who share a love for four-part harmony. This article delves into the significance of the BHS winners, the competitions they participate in, and how their voices contribute to the rich tapestry of American music.

The Barbershop Harmony Society: An Overview

The Barbershop Harmony Society is a nonprofit organization that promotes barbershop singing and harmonizing. With thousands of members across North America and beyond, the society is dedicated to preserving and promoting the art of barbershop music.

History and Evolution

The BHS originated from the desire to create a new style of music that combined traditional American folk songs with intricate vocal harmonies. Over the years, it has evolved into a respected institution that not only holds competitions but also provides educational resources for singers.

Mission and Vision

The mission of the BHS is to bring people together through the joy of singing. The organization aims to:

- Promote vocal harmony through education and performance.
- Encourage the formation of barbershop quartets and choruses.
- Provide resources for community outreach and music education.

Competitions: The Path to Becoming a Winner

The BHS hosts various competitions throughout the year, where singers can showcase their talents. These competitions are divided into several categories, including:

Chorus Competitions

Chorus competitions feature groups of singers who perform arranged pieces. The judging criteria include:

- Musicality
- Presentation
- Vocal quality

Choruses usually consist of a minimum of 12 singers and can include hundreds of members. The most successful choruses go on to compete at the international level.

Quartet Competitions

Quartet competitions focus on smaller groups of four singers. These competitions are often more intimate and allow for greater individual expression. The judging criteria for quartets are similar to those for choruses, with an emphasis on:

- Blend and balance
- Vocal technique
- Stage presence

Winning a quartet competition is a significant achievement and can lead to opportunities for professional gigs and recordings.

International Competitions

The pinnacle of competition within the BHS occurs at the International Convention. Here, the best choruses and quartets from around the world compete for prestigious titles. The competition features:

- Semifinals and finals for both choruses and quartets.
- A showcase of new talent and emerging groups.
- Opportunities for networking and collaboration among participants.
