1. The Inner Circle

This is the most intimate circle, comprising your closest friends and family members. These individuals are trusted confidants with whom you share your deepest thoughts, feelings, and experiences.

2. The Middle Circle

This circle includes acquaintances and friends who you know well but may not share everything with. They are trusted to a certain extent but may not have access to your most personal matters.

3. The Outer Circle

The outer circle consists of individuals with whom you have a casual relationship. These could be co-workers, casual friends, or acquaintances. The level of trust in this circle is typically low, and interactions are often surface-level.
