Practitioners assert that by harnessing the unique vibrational frequency of each crystal, they can facilitate healing and balance within the body. This holistic approach considers the individual as a whole, taking into account physical, emotional, and spiritual aspects.

The Science Behind Crystal Healing

While scientific validation of crystal healing is limited, many practitioners and enthusiasts believe that crystals can help by:

1. Resonating with Energy: Each crystal has a distinct vibrational frequency, which can interact with the human energy field. This resonance may help to balance and harmonize energy within the body.
2. Promoting Relaxation: Many people find that the presence of crystals can induce a state of relaxation, reducing stress and anxiety, which are often barriers to healing.
