Dear Daddy, I'm not quite there yet,
But soon you'll see my little face,
With tiny hands and feet so small,
I can't wait to join your warm embrace.

You'll teach me how to ride my bike,
And help me build my first big tower,
With stories and laughter every night,

In every gentle touch and kiss,

And share a lifetime of happiness.

I dream of adventures, of parks and trees,
Of splashing in puddles and feeling the breeze.
You'll teach me to dance and to ride on a bike,
With you as my guide, I'll learn what I like.
